- Closing Movement and Grounding Ritual
our breath, and our environment.
The body, not the thinking brain, is where we experience most of our pain, pleasure, and joy, and where we process most of what happens to us. It is also where we do most of our healing, including our emotional and psychological healing. And it is where we experience resilience and a sense of flow.

Ayni (reciprocity in Quechua)

Circle of Everything
Dark/heavy-light, joyful/painful, celebration/grief, temporary state of everything

The Practice of Reciprocity giving/receiving, relationship of balance, humans & natural world
If you need to rest, let the earth hold you. If you feel overwhelmed, go and let the silence find you. If you are numb and terrified, call on the Mother. If you are feeling stable and resourced, dedicate some of that energy to others who feel depleted.

Guided Meditation Practice

w/song I Am by India Arie + Beautiful Chorus
“Call your spirit back. It may be caught in corners and creases of shame, judgment, and human abuse. You must call in a way that your spirit will want to return. Speak to it as you would to a beloved child. Welcome your spirit back from its wandering. It may return in pieces, in tatters. Gather them together. They will be happy to be found after being lost for so long. Your spirit will need to sleep a while after it is bathed and given clean clothes. Now you can have a party. Invite everyone you know who loves and supports you. Keep room for those who have no place else to go. Make a giveaway, and remember, keep the speeches short. Then, you must do this: help the next person find their way through the dark.”

Joy Harjo, Conflict Resolution for Holy Beings: Poems
Your no makes the way for your yes. Boundaries create the container within which your yes is authentic. Being able to say no makes yes a choice.

Building A Rhythm of Life:

- Art of the “necessary no” - boundary-setting
- Opening and closing the day in a grounding way
- Finding space for breath through the day
- Honoring your own worth & finding daily liberation in self-care and support
- Self-Permission to pause & restore
- The “Practice of Imperfection”
- “Dimming Down” as a Night Rhythm (quieting the noise)
- ...Build Your Rhythm of Life
Building our rhythms of life

A Collective Conversation
Joy is a freedom. It helps a person to find his/her own liberation. The person who is joyous takes responsibility for the time he/she takes up and the space that he/she occupies. You share it! Some of you have it ... you share it! That is what joy is! When you continue to give it away you will still have so much more of it.
